

Countess von Hatzfeldt in Five Summer Gowns for the Girl of Medium Means. Total Cost, $53.39.

(Costumes from Arnold, Constable &amp; Co.)

A Japanese Kimono for Lounging.

The working girl counts a Japanese kimono a luxury, but she has one in cotton crepe adorned with gay flowers and faces with brilliant hues. Such a negligee costs $2.

A Smart Business Outfit.

She goes to business in a dark serge skirt, shirt waist and working hat. The skirt costs $4, the shirt waist $1.50, and the hat $2.

A Bathing Suit that is Pretty and Cheap.

When she goes to Coney Island with her best fellow, of course she goes in bathing. Then she wears a costume for which she pays $4.

For a Trip to the Sea Shore.

On the boat down she wishes to appear as nautical as possible, and dons a pretty white duck suit which costs $10. The pale blue shirt waist which she wears with this is worth $2, and her sailor hat costs 89 cents.

Her Dress-Up Costume.

When that same best fellow takes her to the theatre she arrays herself in a soft white muslin which costs the modest sum of $20, and crowns her pretty head with a hat whose price is $7.

How to Punch the Bag--Three Positions by Champion Belle Gordon.

Belle Gordon, the Champion Woman Bag Puncher of the World, Announces
That She Stands Ready to Defend Her
Title Against All Comers for

She Poses Before the Journal
Camera in an Exercise Which
She Claims is an Ideal One for Women, and Which Results in a Perfect Development of the Bust and Shoulders.

A good blow with the right.

A graceful elbow position.

Another elbow position.

N, PARIS' LATEST SUGGEST.

Ellen Terry as Madam Sans Gene--Her Latest London Photographs.

